Between twelve and one o'clock yesterday forenoon fire broke out in the house of a European residing in Mosque Street. The cookhouse chimney which runs up the side of the dwelling house, had caught fire, and a wooden beam running across the chimney, and on a level with the first floor, communicated the flames to the flooring. The Chinese servants were, as usual, thrown into a helpless state of excitement; but the owner, who just immediately after returned from church, quickly extinguished the fire by tearing away the portion of the woodwork nearest the chimney, and by throwing a considerable quantity of water on the

The "Hongkong Engineers' Institute" mitted; and the large majority of the mem- had just mangurated. bers have most sensibly supported the Committee in the decision that non-intoxicants only will be used as beverages in the Institute. A neat little bar has been placed in the reading-room, where temperance refreshments of every kind may be obtained; and the nucleus of a library has been formed.

There were over thirty members present at the opening of the Institute on Saturday night; and Mr John Inglis, President of the Institute, delivered the inaugural address, the general tone of which speaks well for the spirit of the promoters and for the future prosperity of the Institute. The President (Mr Inglis) said that, on the official opening of the Institute, he wished to claim their indulgence whilst he gave a short retrospect, and remarked upon the origin, objects and aims of the Institute they had now established. Some time previous to the preliminary meeting held in April last, a feeling had gradually been gaining ground that, as a body, they ought to have a representative institution suited to the wants and tastes of the various resident engineers, as well as of the mombers of the sea-going branch who trade to and from this busy and ever-growing port. The statement that the first meeting proved successful was amply verified by a glance around the room which they had selected. Approximately the number of members was highty, the number of invitations issued being a hundred and sixty-two; but they were in hopes that, as opportunities cocurred, and as steamers from California, Australia, and the Northern China and Chapter 100. It had been stated, he said, desired the plea amended to such a form as and 108 cartridges, and in a cabin above he other ports visited the place, they would have a considerable accession to their numbers. As for the objects of the Institute, they embraced various means of mutual and intellectual improvement, as well as torney General argued that the old laws of the encouragement of that aggial intercourse so essential to the happiness of every one who feels that the greater portion of the pleasure of his own life depends on the pleasant moments which he can devote to true friendship in associating with those around him. In this sense they hoped to make the Institute a quiet place of resort, where engineers from all parts of the world may in many instances meet old friends and find themselves at home for the short time they may be here. The Committee it ought not to remain any longer in force. ble for Mr Smith to take the form out of to go into the latter's backshop. did not, however, intend to leave out of view the main object of self-improvement, 3 of 65. Of these the learliest that came muy perhaps have been the Lalin tribes, with the Dorians and Ionians ; but the first that made their way through western Europe to the shores of the Atlantic were the Gael, or true Kelts. After these came the Kymry; then the Toutons; and finally-in very recent times, near the beginning of the Christian erathe Slave. We have now carried this brief account of the arrival of man in Europe as far as is requisite for our present purpose. Starting from ages of which only a paleontological record is preserved, we have gralually come down to a period almost within the ken of history. We have seen Europe inhabited in succession by four distinct races of men : firstly, the men of the River-drift, who belonged to a warm climate, and who during the Glacial period became extinct, along with many of the subtropical mammals with which they were contemporary; secondly, the Cave-men, who belonged to a cold climate and of whom the Eskimos are now probably a surviving remnant; thirdly, the swarthy Iberians; and, fourthly, the fair-skinned Aryans-these two latest races having by intermarriage given rise to the present mixed population of Europe.

PUBLISHED BI-MONTHLY. TENTH YEAR.

FITHIS Review, which was intended to meet the wants of many students of Chinese caused by the discontinuance of "Notes and Queries on China and Japan," has reached its Tenth Volume, The Review discusses those topics which are uppermost in the minds of students of the "Far East" and about which every intelligent person connected with China or Japan is desirous of acquiring trustworthy information. It includes many interesting Notes and original Papers on the Arts, Sciences, Ethnology, Folklore, Geography, History, Literature, Mythology, Natural History, Antiquities, and Social Manners and Customs, etc., etc., of China, Japan, Mongolia, Tibet, and the Far East generally. Recently a new departure has been taken, and the Review now gives papers on Trade, Commerce, and Descriptive notes of Travel by well-known writers. It was thought that by extending the scope of the Review in this direction, the Magazine would be made more generally

The Review department-receives special attention, and endeavours are made to present a careful and concise record of Literature on China ote., and to give critiques embodying sketches of the Most Publishers are requested to forward works to "Editor, China Review, onre of China Mail Office.

The Notes and Queries are still continued from and diffusing among students knowledge on obscure points.

The Correspondents' column also affords farther and greater facilities for the interchange of views and discussion of various

Original contributions in Chinese, Latin, or any of the Modern Languages are received. The papers are contributed by the members of the various Consular, the Inperial Customs, and Hongkong Services, | St. Peter's Senmen's Church, West Point, and also by the Missionary bodies amongst whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is assiduously cultivated. Amongst the regular contributors are Drs. Chalmers, Eitel, Bretschneider, Hirth, and Hance, Professor Legge, and Messra Balfour, Watters, Stent. Phillips, MucIntyre, Groot, Jamie-Faber, Kopsch, Parker, Playfair, Giles, and Piton,-all well-known names, indicative of sound scholarship and thorough mastery of their subject.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"All our learned societies should subscribe to this scholarly and enterprising Review."-Northern Christian Advocate (U.S.) "The China Review * * * * has an excellent table of contents,"-Celestial Empire. The Publication always contains subjects of interest to sojourners in the Far-East and the present issue will hold favourable if not advantageous comparison, with preceding numbers." - Colestial Empire. "This number contains several articles ofinterest and value,"-North-China Herald. "The present number of this periodical, * * * * opens with a review of the Foreign Trade of China during 1880. This is rather a new departure for a publication which professes to be purely literary; but considering the comparatively small circulation it enjoys at present among the commercial communities of China, we hall the innovation as likely to recommend the Review to the notice of those who take an interest in few matters beyond mercantile pursuits."-

North-China Herald. "The China Review for September-October fully maintains the high standard of excellence which characterises that publiand altogether forms interesting and readable number. teorologists will find an interesting and valuable contribution, by Dr. Fritsche on "the Amount of Precipitation (Rain and Snow) of Peking," showing the results of observations made at the Imperial Rus sian Observatory at Peking, from 1841 to 1880. Notes on the Dutch Occupation of Formosa," by Mr. Geo. Phillips, contain some interesting information, although much of it is second-hand. The Notices of New Books include a most generous an appreciative review of "The Divine Classi of Nan-Hua," and the Notes and Querie

Daily News. "A substantial and reliable Review which all students of China and the Chinese would do well to patronise." - Uhrysauthemum. The November-December number of the China Review contains less variety than usual, but the few articles are very interesting. The opening paper by Mr Herbert A. Giles on "The New Testament in Chinese" treats of a question that must necessarily be of great importance in the eyes of all missionaries. . . Mr. E. H Parker's "Short Journeys in Szechuen are continued, and a goodly instalment of these travels in the interior of China is given. Mr F. H. Balfour contributes paper of some length entitled " The Emperor Cheng, founder of the Chinese Empire," which will be read with genuine interest by students of Chinese history, A few short notices of New Books and a number of Notes and Queries, one of which

"On Chinese Oaths in Western Borneo and Java" might appropriately have been placed under a separate heading, complete the number."—H.K. Daily Press. Trubner's Oriental Record contains the following notice of the China Review:-

The present publication, judging by the number now before us, is intended to occupy a position, as regards China and the neighbouring countries, somewhat similar to that which has been filled in India by the Calcutta Review. The great degree of attention that has been bestowed of late years upon the investigation of Chinese literature. antiquities, and social developments, to say nothing of linguistic studies, has led to the accumulation of important stores of information, rendering some such channel of publicity as is now provided extremely desirable : and contributions of much interest may fairly be looked for from the members of the foreign consular services, the Chinese Customs corps, and the missionary body. smong whom a high degree of Chinese scholarship is now assiduously cultivated. and who are severally represented in the first number of the Review by papers highly creditable to their respective authors Some translations from Chinese movels and plays are marked by both accuracy and freshnest of style; and an account of the career of the Chinese poet-statesman of the eleventh contury, Su Tung p'o, by Mr. E. C. Bowra, One Day, is not only historically valuable, but is also Half Day.
